

CONTENTS

	Page No.
Preface	iii,
Contents	v
Detailed Contents	vi
List of Tables	ix
List of Diagrams	ix
List of Annexures	x
Introduction	xi

CHAPTER SCHEME

I. Planning in India	1
II. Area Planning	11
III. Policy Issues relating to Area Planning	25
IV. Area Planning in India - Evolution of a Model	33
V. A Model Block Plan for adoption in India.	63
VI. Adoption of Area Planning - A Case Study	72

Annexures

Bibliography

CONTENTS

Introduction

xi - xx

Prologue - Core Objectives of the Study - Research Studies made earlier in regard to Area Planning - Chapter Scheme - References.

Chapter I - Planning in India

1 - 10

The concept of Planning for Economic Development - History of Indian Economic Planning - Achievements of Economic Planning in India - A critical appraisal of the achievements of Indian Planning - Decision from above - Lack of Realism - Too many assumptions - Adhocism - Lack of alternatives - Regional Disparity - References.

Chapter II - Area Planning:

11 - 24

Theoretical approach to Area Planning - Objectives of Area Plan - Removal of constraints - Area Planning - A perspective - Area Planning in retrospect in India - References.

Chapter III - Policy Issues relating to Area Planning:

25 - 32

Composition of 'Area' for the purpose of Planning in India - Policy issues in regard to Area Planning - Self-sufficiency or specialisation in Planning unit - Inter-Sectoral relationship - Methodology for Planning - Term of the Plan - Massive Investment oriented Schemes for Blocks - Financing Area Plans - Approval of the Plan - National and Block Level objectives.

Chapter IV - Area Planning in India - Evolution of a Model Plan

33 - 62

Indian Planning Commission - Present system of Sectoral allocation - Allocation of State Subjects - Type of Block

: vii :

Level Planning to be adopted - Model suggested - Planning process to be adopted - Phase I-Planning Commission - Phase II-Planning at the Block Level - Phase III-Planning at the District Level - Phase IV-Planning at the State Level - Phase V-Formulation of the National Plan - Phase VI-Communication of the approved Plan down the line - Phase VII-Implementation - Advantages of the Planning Model suggested above for adoption in India - Problems in introducing Block or Area Planning - Financial Resources in regard to Area Plans - Public Sector Outlay - State Level Finance Commission - Private Sector Outlay - Machinery required for the formulation and implementation of Area Level Plans.

Chapter V - A Model Area Plan - for adoption in India

63 - 71

Phase I-Preliminary Study of the Block - Stage 1-Collection of Secondary data - Stage 2-Study of the potential and needs of the Block or Area - Stage 3-Critical evaluation of the Block's growth in the past - Phase II - Household Survey - Stage 1-Conduct of Household Survey - Stage 2-Collection of Village-wise particulars - Phase III - Selection of a Planning Model - Phase IV - Preparation of the Plan for the Block.

Chapter VI - Adoption of Area Planning in India - A Case Study

72 - 166

Presentation of the Case - Selection of the Case Block - Methodology adopted for the collection of data - Source of data - Problems faced - A Profile of the Block as reflected by the Secondary data - Comparison of the growth recorded by the Block with that recorded by the State/District - A critical evaluation of the Block's growth vis-a-vis Chittoor District and Andhra Pradesh - A critical evaluation of the Block's growth vis-a-vis its potential - Conduct of Household Survey - Methodology - Problems faced while conducting the Survey - Check of accuracy - Usefulness of the Survey - A Socio-Economic Profile of the Block - Collection of Village-wise particulars about the Block - Development Plan for Nagari Block - Objectives of the Plan - Growth rate - Infrastructural facilities required - Model Plan for the Block - Diagram setting out the Outlay - Financial Resources to meet the outlay - Likely impact of the Plan on the Economy of the Block - Diagram setting out the impact - Linear Programming Model - Machinery required to Plan, implement and monitor the implementation of the Plan at the Block Level.

Annexures

Bibliography
