

PREFACE

The piece of research presented in this thesis attempts to understand academic achievement as a social phenomenon and to identify and delineate factors contributing to academic achievement among secondary school pupils. This study, it is hoped, would further our knowledge about the nature and dynamics of academic achievement.

I am grateful to Dr. M. Lakshmana Singh, M.A., Ph.D., Reader in Sociology, Madras University Autonomous PG Centre, Coimbatore, for guiding the thesis.

I am also thankful to Dr. C. M. Abraham, M.A., L.L.B., Ph.D., Professor and Head of the Department of Sociology, Madras University Autonomous PG Centre, Coimbatore, for showing keen interest in my research work.

I am grateful to the University of Madras for awarding me Non-Stipendiary Full Time Junior Research Fellowship and enabling me to undertake this piece of research and submit the same for Ph.D.

M/S. Computronics India, New Delhi and The Computer Center of the PSG College of Technology, Coimbatore, have made their services available to me for processing data collected in this study; I thank them for their support in this regard.

Coimbatore-41

30th April, 1981.

Mrs. N. VEDAL.