ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

At the very outset I take this opportunity of acknowledging my indebtedness to my respected teacher and guide Prof. (Dr.) Niru Hzarika, Department of Political Science, Gauhati University for her guidance and supervision of my research work. Inspite of her most busy schedule she left no stone unturned to inspire and suggest me whenever I approached her during the whole period of the research work. Eventually, it would have been not possible on my part to complete the thesis without her guidance and supervision.

I cannot but express my deep feeling of gratefulness to Dr. Alpana Sarkar, Associate Professor and HOD, Assamese, Bikali College, Dhupdhara, for her inspiration and various suggestions to complete the research work.

I am also grateful to Dr. Prasanta Chakraborty, my colleague and Associate Professor, Department of Political Science, Bikali College, Dhupdhara, for his suggestions and repeated inspirations to complete the research work as early as possible. I am also grateful to him for supplying me some materials for the study.

I also express my gratefulness to Abdul Haque Ahmed, Associate Professor and HOD, Economics, Bikali College, Dhupdhara, for his valuable suggestions and inspirations.

My sincere gratefulness is due to Mrs. Manalisha Roychowdhury, Associate Professor and HOD, English, Bikali College for her constant inspiration to complete the research work.

My thanks go to Sayed Ali Ahmed, Associate Professor, Political Science, Bikali College, Mr. Kabir Hussain, Mr. Girin Thakuria, Mr. Jainuddin Islam, Mrs. Renuka
Bhattacharjee and Miss Swamalata Devi, Librarian, Bikali College, Dhupdhara for their cordial good wishes to complete the research work.

Mr. Himangshu Kakati, lecturer, Bikali College, deserves thankfulness for rendering sincere help in completing my research work.

I am grateful to all informants without whose cooperation and help it would not have been possible for me to collect relevant data and information for this research work.

My wife, Morjina Khatun, deserves thankfulness for her constant inspirations in the entire period of research work.

My sons Mahmudul Hasan and Mas-U-dul Hasan also deserve thankfulness for their repeated inspiration and encouragement to complete the research work as early as possible.
