ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Writing ‘Acknowledgements’ does not necessarily redeem one from indebtedness - both personal and intellectual. Yet this practice seems to be a good way out for externalizing feelings of gratitude and appreciation.

I am delighted to place on record the invaluable co-operation of certain individuals and organisations that enabled me to complete this work.

Over the past few years I have had innumerable conversations with Anthropologists, Sociologists, Educationalists, Professors from department of Communications and the other Social Scientists about my research work.

Of these people I am particularly indebted to Dr. Shrikant Soni, Department of Communications, University of Pune. Dr. Miss Mehta, Ex-Principal S.N.D.T college, Pune. Dr. Chitra Sohani and many others who have contributed directly or indirectly to the completion of this Thesis. To all these people and to those I have not mentioned I would like to acknowledge a large debt of gratitude.

I would be failing in my duty if I did not thank the number of students, parents, teachers, headmasters, administrative staffs, hostel superintendents, leaders from the community etc. who spent painful hours answering my questions and had given co-operation. Had it not been for their very frank and open exposition of the problems that were determined to their academic failure or achievements whatever it may be, this research would have been a total failure.

I am greatly indebted to my beloved teachers, Prof. R.K. Mutatkar, Department of Anthropology and the School of Health Sciences, University of Pune, Dr. B.V. Bhanu and Dr. K.S. Nair, Department of Anthropology, University of Pune who had given me inspiration and help.

I owe my large debt of gratitude to my friend Dr. Lakshman Kulkarni for his constant encouragement, inspiration and scholarly guidance in the completion of this work.

I am very much indebted to my brother Rev. M. Thomas Kurian and Rev. Joshua John for their invaluable help. Their prayers, generosity and goodwill is deeply acknowledged.

My children, Carol and Thomas (Ponny), during the entire period of my research, I failed to satisfactorily perform my roles of mother. I am greatly indebted to them for their help and patience.

I am deeply indebted to Dr. Joy C. Kurian, Vice President, Spicer Memorial College, Pune who had helped me with all the diagrams and statistical sections of the thesis. Without his cooperation this work would have been incomplete.

I am grateful to Dr. Mrs. Sujatha Bhanu (My Sujatha Aunty) in whom I have cherished a true friend who has not only helped me in completing my thesis by doing necessary corrections, but one who could also see through my problems and give timely advice and counsel.

At times when the burden seemed too heavy to bear and the task impossible, she has always there to lighten the load and place her "shoulder to the wheel".

Particular appreciation is accorded to Miss Suchitra Tamby, Lecturer Loyola Junior College, Pune, a very sincere friend of mine for her help in the proofreading and correction.

I must not forget to mention the help I received from Mrs. Vaishali Bongale who took time off her various engagements to do typing for me and translated my drafts into clearly typed Computer copy.

In closing I have reserved my special and most grateful acknowledgement to the one who has not only suggested me this very interested and intricate topic of study but also led me through the dark alleys and abysses of my research to the brightened path. I am referring to none other than my beloved teacher and guide, Dr. Raja Pokharapurkar, Professor Department of Communications, Yeshwantrao Chavan Maharastra Open University, Nashik.

His total commitment to the study and research of communication cannot be denied by anybody. As a true and patient teacher and guide, he provided me with that rare and unique guidance multiplied with an unceasing stream of inspiration without which this thesis would have remained a marriage and not a realization.

Having completed this ritual of acknowledgements the only "dakshana" I offer, is this volume, which I hope will fulfil every earnest expectations.
