ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The guidance, help, and unfailing support of numerous friends, professors, and loved ones find fruition in this completed project.

My first and foremost, I wish to place on record my profound gratitude to my esteemed guide, Dr. R.Ramakrishna, Ph.D., Professor of Linguistics and Director, Kuvempu Institute of Kannada Studies, University of Mysore, Manasagangotri, Mysore, India who introduced me to the present field of research and guided me in all its stages. He ingrained me the import of clarity and gladly offered me more hours of his time than I ever would have felt comfortable asking for adeptly blending support, direction, and supervision. He has also helped me academically, professionally, and personally in tremendous ways. His patience, constant encouragement, inspiration and guidance at every stage of the present investigation have been invaluable for me- he served as the most perfect advisor. I feel very fortunate to have enjoyed the opportunity to work so closely with him, whom I harbor great respect for, personally and academically.

I would like to extend my sincere thanks to Dr. B.K.Ravidranath, Asst.Professor of Linguistic Anthropology, Department of Studies in Linguistics, Kuvempu Institute of Kannada Studies, University of Mysore, Manasagangotri, Mysore, India for the unfailing academic helpfulness throughout this research study.

Next I owe an incredible debt of gratitude to M.K Binodini and her fictions, for this thesis would not be what it is today without them. I stand in awe of this writer as the both her literary figure and human beings through her three fictions; Nung'gairakta Chandramukhi (nuŋ’gairəkta cəndərmukhi) (1965), Boro Saheb Ongbi Sanatombi (boro saheb oŋbi sənatombi) (1979) and Churachand Maharajgi Imung (curacandə məharajʒəgi imun) (2008) selected to study for this thesis. Her fictions through the contextual narration taught me a great deal about the stylistics, theories, analysis ways etc. in theirs. She is a model and inspirational Manipuri writer for me to be liked her in the future.

Later I want to take this opportunity to express my thanks to Phra Soraphan Nantaphumi, Hassan Rasouli Kharshidi for giving me such a kind help to run my Ph.D document and a special thanks to Mr. Vikash Jaiswal for his readiness to help me when I have any problems. If there would not have their dedicating, I have finally not walked through the successful completion of my degree this time.

Moreover, I have no bounds to express the constant help, valuable suggestions, care and concern of my loving grandmother, Mrs. N. Benu, my loving father, Mr. Nongmaithem Saratchandra Singh and my mother, Mrs. N. Lukamani Devi, my beloved brothers, N. Sadananda Singh and N. Lokeshwar Singh, my best friend, Miss Memirose Konsam, and her family and all of my friends for their moral support, immeasurable help, and encouragement to complete my thesis successfully.

Finally, to all those mentioned, and to others not named, but who engaged and supported me in my academic endeavors, I extend a heartfelt thanks. It is I, not them, who takes sole responsibility for any errors or shortcomings in this work. However, if there is any merit or praise to be found in what is contained in these pages, that must be shared among the many, named and unnamed, who helped and guided me along the way.
