

Acknowledgments

I wish to acknowledge my gratitude to the staff of the Senate House Library, London University, the Bodleian Library, Oxford, the Cambridge University Library and, particularly, the King's College Library, Cambridge, the New York Public Library, the Houghton Library, Harvard, the National Library, Calcutta, the British Council Library, Calcutta, the American Center, Calcutta, and the American Studies Research Centre, Hyderabad. I owe a particular debt of gratitude to Dr. M.A. Halls, Modern Archivist of King's College Library for his generous help.

I am grateful to the University Grants Commission, India, for a Teacher Fellowship for three years and to the British Council for a Visitorship to England. I am deeply grateful for the generosity of Dr. E. J. Lindgren-Utsi which made possible my study trip abroad.

I thank Lucy Cavendish College, Cambridge, for giving me the facilities of a Visiting Scholar for a term. I am indebted to Dame Helen Gardner, Mrs. Anne Ridler, Prof. Katharine Worth and Prof. Christopher Ricks for sparing time to discuss aspects of Eliot's work. I have been greatly helped by detailed suggestions by Dr. Harold F. Brooks and Mr. Paul Lapworth on some chapters. I am grateful to my supervisor, Dr. Amalendu Bose, for his encouragement.

I am grateful to Mrs. Diane Oakeley for permission to quote from her brother John Hayward's writings, to Mrs. Audrey Browne for permission to quote from E. Martin Browne's letters, and to Mrs. Valerie Eliot for answering queries and granting permission to see unpublished material and to quote from some of them. The extracts from papers at Houghton are quoted by permission of Houghton.

Finally, my thanks are due to my late husband, Subrata Sinha, and my family for their faith and forbearance.
