

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It gives me immense pleasure to submit my thesis for PhD in management, which is not an end but a beginning for all those who are keen and enthusiastic to carry out similar studies for developing innovative and up-dated models of Management Education and Training to create sound professionals and leaders to meet the future challenges of the business world.

I was fortunate to have Prof. Kuldip Joshi, a known trainer of the corporate sector in Maharashtra, as my research guide, who, with his professional acumen and experience encouraged me to explore various dimensions of the research methodology and enrich my knowledge to produce a quality work. Despite his awfully busy schedule of professional and social commitments, he was always available to me, whenever needed, for consultation, discussions and deliberations on the various aspects of my research work. Submission of this thesis would not have been possible, but for his instant support, cooperation and guidance. I have no words to express my gratitude and just salute him for his humbleness and valuable contributions.

The next figure who stands before me to thank is Dr. P.C Shejwalkar, a known founder of management education in the city of Pune, an eminent educationist, a Guru, a guide and, above all, a guardian of thousands of faculty and students. All through the period of my research work, he remained concerned and caring. He was always available to me for guidance, suggestions and clarifications that I sought from him very often on the various issues related to my research work. I wish to convey my heart felt thanks and “PRANAM” to him for all valuable guidance and contributions he made towards completion of this thesis.

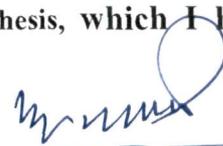

I also wish to convey my sincere thanks to Dr. Vishwanath D Karad, my mentor and the role model to whom I adore; especially for the work that he has done to promote value based education, which will go a long way to shape up the destiny of future generations. He has been kind enough to spare me from some of my institutional responsibilities to enable me complete this thesis. One of the other personalities, who stands intellectually tall before me to thank is Padmashree Dr. Vijay Bhatkar, for giving me valuable input for inclusion in the thesis, especially with reference to the issues related to morality and ethics in business, which has its own importance.

My thanks to all the other Intellectuals, Academicians, Scholars, Professionals, and a large number of Faculty and Students, who came in my contact during the period of research and directly or indirectly made academic / intellectual contributions towards enrichment of my thesis. I would also like to thank young Avinash and Havildar C Kathiresan, who have extended their technical support of formatting this thesis and given the final shape.

Finally, I take this opportunity to thank my wife, Ujwala, my daughter Kalpana and Son Vikrant; including distantly located Vivek, Alpana, Nikky and Uttara, each of whom extended whole hearted support and cooperation and made contributions in their own way during the entire period of my research. Most importantly, the moral and emotional support was, of course, something that kept me going all through the arduous period of my research and made it possible to finally complete this thesis, which I humbly dedicate in the memory of my Parents.

Pune – 411007

17 November 2007

---

Prof (Col) Vishwanath Rai
Research Student