

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I express my deep sense of gratitude to my supervisor Prof. Deepak Kumar Behera, Department of Anthropology, Sambalpur University for providing me valuable guidance and encouragement for the timely completion of this work. His useful tips and important hints helped me a lot to bring the thesis to its present shape.

I am thankful to all those social scientists whose writings on tribal women encouraged me to go for this study. I express my special thanks to all the villagers (especially women) of Panasanasa, Bali, Budhighar, and Phulbadi who provided me support to stay with them and helped me in various ways during the course of the field work.

I must acknowledge with gratitude the encouragement, which I received from all the faculty members of the Department of Sociology and Department of Anthropology, Sambalpur University.

I would like to thank my parents, brother, sister, friends who always encouraged me and helped in various ways. I would also like to thank my daughter Sanskruti (Paree) who motivated me and took the pain of staying away from me during the course of my fieldwork. Last but not the least, I am grateful to my husband Mr. Saswat Pujari whose able cooperation and valuable suggestions gave me a tremendous boost to complete the study. I am also grateful to Mr. Priyaranjan Sahu, Journalist 'Hindustan Times' for his suggestions and encouragement.

I am extremely thankful to Mr. Arun Basa and Mr. Vipool Ghetia for their patience in typing and formatting my thesis.

I shall fail in my duty if I do not thank Mr. Srikant Juang and his family members who have helped me a lot during the course of the fieldwork.

January 26, 2004
Jyoti Vihar, Burla
Sambalpur, Orissa (INDIA)

Jharana Mishra.
(Jharana Mishra)