Table 3.1 Ingredients selected from each food group for detection of adulterants and the adulterants tested. ............ 46
Table 4.1 Demographic profile of street food vendors..................... 60
Table 4.2 Characteristics of the street food outlets ....................... 63
Table 4.3 Salient features of street food vending............................ 68
Table 4.4 Frequency of purchase of raw ingredients by the street food vendors........................................ 74
Table 4.5 Cleanliness and hygiene practices of the street food vendors................................................................. 76
Table 4.6 Cleanliness and hygiene status of street vending outlets ............................................................................. 77
Table 4.7 Hygiene practices at the street vending units ................. 79
Table 4.8 On the spot observation of hygiene practices at the street food outlets......................................................... 81
Table 4.9 Socio-economic profile of street food consumers .......... 84
Table 4.10 Street food consumption particulars of the consumers..... 87
Table 4.11 Street Food Consumption pattern of the consumers....... 89
Table 4.12 Nutrient intake of adult female consumers from street foods ................................................................. 92
Table 4.13 Nutrient intake of adult male consumers from street foods........................................................................ 92
Table 4.14 Nutrient composition of deep fried snacks sold at street food outlets (per serving)..................................... 95
Table 4.15 Nutrient composition of steamed snacks sold at street food outlets (per serving)......................................... 97
Table 4.16 Nutrient composition of the main dishes sold at street food outlets (per serving)........................................... 98
Table 4.17 Nutrient composition of vegetarian side dishes sold at street food outlets (per serving).............................. 99
Table 4.18 Nutrient composition of non vegetarian side dishes sold at street food outlets (per serving).............................100

Table 4.19 Nutrient composition of the main meal sold at street food outlets (per serving) .................................................102

Table 4.20 Nutrient composition of chaats sold at street food outlets (per serving) .........................................................103

Table 4.21 Comparison of mean scores for the organoleptic attributes of street vended and laboratory prepared foods (Max. score =5) ......................................................106

Table 4.22 Adulterants detected in ingredients used by street food vendors ........................................................................110

Table 4.23 Microbial count of steamed main dishes vended at the street food outlets .........................................................113

Table 4.24 Microbial count of shallow fried main dishes vended at the street food outlets ................................................115

Table 4.25 Microbial count of deep fried vegetarian dishes vended at the street food outlets ........................................116

Table 4.26 Microbial count of deep fried non vegetarian dishes vended at the street food outlets ........................................117

Table 4.27 Microbial count of vegetarian side dishes vended at the street food outlets ....................................................120

Table 4.28 Microbial count of Non vegetarian side dishes vended at the street food outlets ........................................121

Table 4.29 Microbial count of street vended beverages ........................................................................................................123

Table 4.30 Microbial count of street vended chaat (Bhel puri) ..............128

Table 4.31 Microbial count of street vended coconut chutney ..............130

Table 4.32 Microbial count of street vended samosa ........................................133

Table 4.33 Microbial count of street vended kozhukatta ....................134

Table 4.34 Microbial count of water used for the preparation of beverages ..................................................................................138

Table 4.35 Microbial count of ice used in the preparation of beverages ..................................................................................139
Table 4.36 Incidence of E.coli and Staphylococcus aureus in swabs collected from street food outlets .........................140

Table 4.37 Mean scores of evaluation of documentary and booklet by experts.................................................................157

Table 4.38 Food safety knowledge of street food vendors before and after training............................................................160