ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

At the end of the day, one of the best things about writing a thesis is being able to thank all those who have helped bringing it to fruition, with their efforts, guidance and inspiration. First and foremost, I am deeply grateful to my supervisor Prof. (Dr.) Gurnam Singh for his constant and intelligent guidance during the period of this thesis, from its inception to the completion. He is a perfectionist and encourages his students to strive for excellence and explore and expand their potentials. I owe a great deal to him, for whatever I have been able to achieve academically.

I am grateful to my teachers – Prof. S.S. Bindra (Head), Prof. Jagroop Singh Sekhon, Prof. Kuldip Singh, Dr. R.S. Sandhu, Mr. Harmeet Singh and Prof. S.S. Narang – for their guidance and constant motivation. I also express my heartfelt gratitude to Prof. S.S Sohal, Head, School of Social Sciences, for his enthusiasm and motivation that has always inspired me to simply keep going with the task at hand. I am highly indebted to Dr. Daljit Singh, Principal, Khalsa College, Amritsar, for believing in me and encouraging me to pursue for excellence in research, besides teaching. I am thankful to Khalsa College Management Committee, Amritsar, and my colleagues in the Department of Political Science, in the college, for their ever-ready support and much needed cooperation.

My sincere gratitudes are due to Dr Adeel Khan, Lecturer in Sociology of Health and Illness, Researcher in Political Sociology, School of Health, University of New England, Armidale, Australia and Alok Bansal, IDSA, New Delhi, for the academic interaction with them have been very helpful for the theoretical clarifications on the ethnic politics in Pakistan. My thanks are also due to Mr. Salim Khawaja, SDPI, Islamabad, who has been generous in helping me to access very useful and rare documents and information regarding the political realities in his country.

I also wish to thank the library staff of Bhai Gurdas Library, Department of Political Science, School of Social Sciences, Department of History, Guru Nanak
Dev University, Amritsar, Khalsa College, Amritsar; Institute of Defense and Strategic Analysis Library, New Delhi; Indian Council of World Affairs Library, New Delhi; Jawaharlal Nehru University Library, New Delhi; Nehru Memorial Museum and Library, New Delhi and also Ministry of External Affairs Library, New Delhi.

I wish to express my heartfelt thanks to Dr. Manjit Kaur for her constant encouragement and timely help whenever I asked for. I am grateful to my friend Dr. Harpreet Mangat for her invaluable support, not only during my research work but otherwise also. I also feel indebted to their families for their affection and back-up. My thanks are also due to Dr. Rupinderjeet Kaur.

I am thankful to my friends Kuljinder Singh, Baljit Singh Virk, Jasbir Singh, Baljit Singh Lali, Madan Lal, Bhupinder Singh Thakur and Sanjeev Kumar Pardhan for their seamless faith in me and my abilities. My thanks are also due to Harcharan Singh Sandhu.

Most of all I am grateful to have S. Daljit Singh Malhi and Srd. Jaswant Kaur Malhi as my parents, who have always supported and pushed me ahead in my life. I am thankful to my brother Gurbhej Singh Malhi and brother-in-law Parminder Singh Dhaliwal, and loving sister Aman for being my strength. I also thank my affectionate chachaji, Kuldip Singh Malhi. My nephew Parneet provided me with lighter moments during times of stress. In the end, I miss my grandparents and my tayaji, Santokh Singh Malhi, who did not survive to see the completion of my thesis, which they had always wished and blessed me for.

Ultimately it’s God Almighty who has blessed me to get through the entire process of my PhD thesis.

(Gurvel Singh Malhi)
