ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is my pleasure to thank the authorities of the Gandhigram Rural Institute (Deemed University), Gandhigram for permitting me to carry out this Ph.D., research in the Department of Life Long Learning and Extension.

I acknowledge with gratitude the constant encouragement and help extended by Dr. SM.Ramasamy, Vice-Chancellor, Gandhigram Rural Institute (Deemed University), Gandhigram and Dr.N.Narayanasamy, Registrar, Gandhigram Rural Institute (Deemed University), Gandhigram throughout the research period.

This thesis would have not been completed successfully without the support and guidance of Dr. S.BALUCHAMY, Professor, Department of Life Long Learning and Extension, Gandhigram Rural Institute (Deemed University) Gandhigram. His continuous guidance and academic support helped me in completing the thesis. He deserves special mention for his encouragement and valuable comments.

I am deeply grateful to Dr. C. A. Prithiviraj, Assistant Chief (Retired), Population Research Centre, Gandhigram Institute of Rural Health and Family Welfare Trust, Gandhigram. I am indebted to him for his untiring and extremely committed effort in having gone through the entire thesis and offering valuable suggestions for improving the thesis by incorporating various modern statistical techniques.

I sincerely express my gratitude to Department staff and friends for their fullest and continuous support in completing this thesis successfully.

Dr. M. A. Jayaraj Ret. Professor deserves my acknowledgement for his constant help and support throughout the preparation of this thesis.

It gives me pleasure to acknowledge my indebtedness to all with whom I had the privilege of establishing personal contact as well as contact through correspondence.

I am indebted to my father Thiru.P.Selvaraj, and mother Thirumathi S.Palaniammal my husband Dr.M.Lakshmanamoorthy and my brother S.Thangapandi and my daughter Ms. L.Yazhini who helped me directly or indirectly in the preparation of this thesis.
I am thankful to the women Village Panchayat Presidents in Villupuram District of Tamil Nadu and the State Government departments in Villupuram District of Tamil Nadu for their keen interest and co-operation in the data collection and for giving their views and feedback.
