I would like to thank many people who have contributed in tangible and intangible ways during this research effort.

My thanks to all the tribal children who have made this possible as they enthusiastically participated in this programme and enjoyed through the programme, and helped me grow as a programmer and a person. A smile on their face and the cheer in their voice helped me rejuvenate every day I worked with them.

My sincere thanks to my guide, Dr. Shivakumara. K for helping me, guiding this research work, and being there for me in all the oddities and circumstances, and being unconditionally supportive. I thank him for all the constructive suggestions, patience, encouragement and persuasion rendered towards me in the process of completing the research work.

My thanks to Dr. Promod Shivacharan, Chairperson and Professor, Department of Studies in Psychology, for his support in this research endeavor.

My thanks to Dr. Vijayalakshmi Aminabhavi, Professor, Department of Studies in Psychology for her cheerful encounter at the department during this research endeavor.

My humble thanks to Dr. Malavika Kapur, Professor, National Institute of Advanced Studies, NIMHANS, Bangalore, for helping me evolve as child friendly human and as an researcher, while providing support, guidance, encouragement at every stage. Numerous discussions with her have helped me see many different perspectives about dealing with children and also personally. She has been the guiding light for this research. It has helped me evolve as a person through her constructive criticisms and suggestions.

My special thanks to Dr. Indira Jai Prakash, for helping me think for my PhD research initially without whose unconditional support I would not have taken this venture.

My sincere thanks to Dr. Uma. H, Professor, Department of Clinical Psychology, NIMHANS, Bangalore, for her timely persuasion and concern. She has also been of immense help for giving in guidance and feedback regarding the research at field.
Special thanks to Dr. Ashok H, Professor, Department of Psychology, Bangalore University, for his kind support and guidance.

My sincere thanks to the Block Education Officer, H. D. Kote., Director of Women and Social Welfare Office, H. D. Kote., the Head Masters and teachers of the schools for giving permission to carry out this research.

I am very grateful to S. S. Basavanal Library, Karnataka University, Dharwad., Library and Information Centre, NIMHANS, Bangalore., other libraries at Bangalore that is Bangalore University, Indian Institute of Management (IIM), National Institute of Advanced Studies and library at Maharani Women's Arts, Commerce and Management College. This work was benefited from many exchanges with researchers who responded to requests for the articles, thanks to all of them.

I thank the other teaching and non teaching faculty members of the Department of Studies in Psychology, Karnataka University for their support during the research work.

Hearty thanks to Members at MYRADA, H. D. Kote for letting me feel at home and for helping me be around that area. Thanks to fellow travellers, who drove along and helped me travel across the rough and tough jungle routes amidst wild animals to reach the project area which was one of the daily routine of my life during the field visits.

My thanks to the team support from Chandrika, Lokesh, Venkatesh, Ranganayaka, and Ravi in supervising follow up activity at the schools.

My friend Rashmi for being around and rendering her suggestions particularly during the initiation of the study.

Thanks to my colleagues Snehal, Supriya, Pushpalatha, and Rashmi for pushing me ahead in submission of the research work.

Hearty thanks to my beloved friends, who kept my spirits up and were around when needed, Shanthala, Asha, Savitha, Danish, Mahesh, Kiran, Prasad, Akram, Malathi, and many others. Although the numbers do not permit individual mention, their support and care have been helpful in pushing me ahead in completing the research work.

A special thank you to my mother for her unconditional love, care, affection, and for always letting me follow my dream.

A very special thanks to my sister for being optimistic, persuading not to give up and supporting me in my research work. Thanks to my brother-in-law for gifts of cheerfulness and unconditional support. Thanks to bubbly, cheerful and loving niece for being around and bringing in warmth and affection.

Thanks to my husband, for being my sounding board, punching bag and being my fellow traveller.

To my father for all the love, support, care, persuasion, optimism, and never give up attitude which has pulled me through this research work. This research work is dedicated to him who forever wished I complete this work.

GEETHA. A