ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The great time has come and almost gone since I started this How time flies! I am grateful to many individuals who were patient with me during this long journey, and who continued to support me without judgment.

The acquiring of research qualifications in the form, of Ph.D. degree is an essential need for me both professionally and personally. Possession of Ph.D. degree is now a mandatory qualification even for the entry into the academic profession. As I have already been in academics for several years, Ph.D. is my essential need for upward movement in profession; it is not only essential but an urgent need for me to have Ph.D. in order to secure the future of my two sons and for meeting the increasing family income requirement. But undertaking of research investigation for the degree of Ph.D. is an extremely long and arduous journey, the path is zigzag, it is full of pitfalls, and ups and downs.

But at every stage of my research work, I discovered numerous positive changes in my academics as well as in personal traits, In I learnt what is the meaning of research, how your thought process shaped with adequate guidance, personal front, I acquired patience, tolerance and commitment.

It would have been almost impossible to complete the thesis for the award of Ph.D. degree without cooperation of others, if all the above twists and turns, ups and downs of my life are taken into consideration. I would like to consider all the people, who cooperated and helped me as the “stakeholders” in my thesis. All of them displayed the true interest and willingness to facilitate my research work and to enable me to complete the thesis successfully.

I owe my gratitude to my Parents; my father Mr. Yogesh Garg and my mother Mrs. Saroj Garg who always believed in me have always made me feel that they are proud of me and this gave me confidence to work harder and do my best. It is always easy to take challenges and aim higher in front of them. Both have been like a shield of protection always.

I express my appreciation and gratitude my parents in law who encouraged me through the long process of completing the thesis. I am grateful to my father in law Mr. K.K. Gupta who was always compassionate and motivating, and my mother in law Mrs Shashi Gupta to make household arrangements when I studied for long hours.

My journey was crowned with thrones; I passed through several not so happy incidence of my life as my elder son ill heath, husband heart attack made major swings in my life, but I am greatly indebted to my devoted and beloved husband Dr. Neeraj Goel without his support my journey was impossible. He always took me out of the crisis situation and provided the immense moral support; always stand with me whatever the phase I was passing through. I stayed in BIMTECH CAMPUS for three months to complete my research work, at that time there was no female member at my home to support, my husband and elder son even cooked the breakfast and food regularly to make my stay possible.

I am indebted to my elder son Divyansh who took a big task to manage household work at age of 15, whether it is supervising the maid or taking care of the family members, with all passion and commitment; in the time when he was struggling from his foot disease and I was away for my study. I want to lovingly thank my younger son Neeransh who let his mom study at the cost of not spending enough time with him. Both have never complained, kept pace with studies and remained jovial always, freeing me from any worry whatsoever about them. Their positive energy and enthusiasm always added a dash of colour to the otherwise mundane life concentrated around research.

I am thankful to my brothers Abhishak and Ankit who keep on motivating and encouraging, making the numerous calls to take the update of my research work, and always being there to support me.

I am greatly thankful to Dr Harivansh Chaturvedi for providing me an opportunity to be a research Scholar at BIMTECH. I sincerely thank Prof. A. Sahay for his immense support as Dean Research I shall fail in my duty without expressing my thanks to Chairperson of Doctoral Committee for his encouragement. I wish to thank Dr. A. K. Dey, Dr. G. N. Patel, Dr. A. N. Bose, Dr. Amit Sharma for their helpful suggestions which led to the improvement of the thesis work.
I want to thank the entire library staff specially Shikha Mam for sharing the emotions and computer staff of Bimtech promptly providing the necessary resources.

Now, my special thanks go to my fellow research scholars; Sudhi Sharma (soon to be Dr) her unconditional and continuous proactive support, Khalid for sharing countless things and emotions in the library, Gaurav Tripathi, sharing lots of information with me whenever I needed. I also convey my sincere thanks to Mr Ajeet, Ms. Himani, Mr. Shivendra and Kamal for their cooperation and presence whenever I need help from them. Special thanks are due to Mr. Santosh and his colleagues, who kept me fresh with the regular supply of tea and coffee whenever needed and entire housekeeping specially Ravi barua, Nirmala Patel to make possible my stay in campus comfortable.

Last, but most important I want to thank the person who was the source of guiding light in the shady gullies of perplexity and half knowledge; who was the bridge that carried over a novice researcher like me, stood like a rock against the waves of apprehension, nervousness and anxiety that at times tried to hit me. With utmost humility and gratitude, I thank my guide Prof. Shri Prakash for being my guide and Guru, due to him only I could cross the river of research; He opened the doors of my intellectual reasoning and thought.
