Acknowledgments

A good deal of help, cooperation, and intellectual and emotional sustenance from within and outside of the IIST has gone into the making of this thesis. I am doubtful that words are sufficient to express my gratitude to all who have helped and contributed towards the completion of this thesis.

To begin with, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my Research Supervisor Dr. Shaijmon C. S, for the continuous support, patience, and motivation during my Ph.D study and related research. His guidance has immensely helped me during the entire time of the research work. I can not have imagined having a better advisor and mentor for my Ph.D life.

Besides my Supervisor, I am grateful to the rest of my Doctoral Committee members: Dr. Jayan J. Thomas, Dr. Manju S. Nair, Dr. Lakhirsmi V. Nair, Dr. M. V. Ramana and Dr. Usha L. R. for their insightful comments and encouragement. Their questions motivated me to broaden my research in various perspectives.

I express my sincere thanks to all faculties in the Department of Humanities; Dr. Ravi V, Dr. Babitha Justin, and Dr. Gigy J. Alex for their immense support in my academic and personal life.

I also wish to thank Directors, Scientists, and Deputy librarians of various institutions including Jewaharlal Nehru University, Delhi School of Economics, Centre for Marine Fisheries Research Institute & Central Institute for Fisheries Technology, Cochin, Centre for Development Studies, Centre for Fisheries Studies, South Indian Federation of Fisheries Studies, Fisheries Department, Government of Kerala. I thank library personal of IIST, and who gave access to their library and research facilities. Without they precious support it would not have been possible to complete this thesis.

I would like to express gratitude to my dear brother and friend, Mr. Satheesh Joseph, for those stimulating discussions, for the sleepless nights, and restless days when we were working together for data collections, and for all the fun we have had during those days. Without his sincere help and work, the interesting results of primary data would not be published.

I am grateful to all my friends in the Department of Humanities, especially Nelgen Nelson, for his continuous proof reading and valuable suggestions, and to Rashmi, Raj, Rajesh, Shiyas, Saumya, Bhavya, and others for their help and support. I extend my gratitude towards my hostel mates. I express my sincere thanks to Vinu R. V. who stood with me in happiness and in sorrow.

Lastly, but very importantly, I owe my sincere gratitude to my mother, my sisters and brother for supporting me spiritedly throughout writing this endeavour.

Sabu M