ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Let me first of all bow my hands in all humility to the supreme father without whose all pervading mercy, it would have been impossible to complete this work in the face of seemingly never ending succession of difficulties.

Research is a long journey, which cannot be accomplished without assistance from varied quarter. Here, I would like to acknowledge all those who helped me during this memorable task of my life time.

I’m highly grateful to my research supervisor Prof. S.P. Kaushik, Head of the Deptt. of Applied Business Economics and Dean, Faculty of Commerce; who introduced me to this topic and inspired me to carry on the work. My obligation to him cannot be expressed in a few words, but, his supervision, guidance and encouragement throughout the research was overwhelming.

I’m extremely obliged to Prof. V.K. Gangal, Deptt. of Applied Business Economic, Faculty of Commerce, for their valuable suggestion, for making this work more scientific and useful. Their caring attitude motivated me for finishing this work in reasonable time.

I feel gratitude to record my cordial thanks to all other members of the faculty and the collegeagues for their help and co-operation during the course of my study.
