

Dedicated to my mother
Mrs. Mandakini Deshmukh

My mother, an octogenarian, is both traditional and modern in her thoughts and action!

She is traditional when it comes to her role as a mother- Loving her children unconditionally. That's how I have gotten away with all my follies in life, knowing here's the person I can always count on.

She is modern when she supports unconventional decisions of her children, learns new technology to keep in touch with her children and grand children, advises to step up and take a stand for the cause we believe in.

She is the one who egged me on to complete a task once taken up and not quit whatever the circumstances.....

I owe this to my mother.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

This study could not have been written without the help and guidance of a large number of people, to whom I owe a great deal of thanks.

First and foremost, I owe this research and the completion of this study to Dr. (Mrs.) Vijaya Katti, an eminent academician with three decades of experience in the matters pertaining to the foreign trade and World Trade Organization. She has been my supervisor and guide, to whom I shall remain grateful for continually supporting and egging me on, in this seemingly never ending endeavour of research.

My sincere thanks are due to Dr. Surajit Mitra, Director, IIFT and Dr. Rakesh Mohan Joshi the Professor and Chairperson, International Collaborations & Research, without whose guidance, patience and sustained positive consideration of my requests, it would not have been possible to complete this study.

Special thanks are due to Dr. (Mrs.) Satinder Bhatia, a doyen of International Financial Management, Policy-based research on International Trade, Dr. (Mrs.) D. Sunitha Raju a highly experienced academician, in the fields of Economic Environment and Policy, Dr. Debashish Chakraborty, Dr. Biswajit Nag, Prof. O.P. Wali and the faculty of Research Division of IIFT for their invaluable guidance and preparing me for the herculean task of this research.

In the same vein, I would like to thank my colleagues in Directorate General of Civil Aviation, without whose valuable technical inputs to this study, I would not have been able to present the Indian perspective correctly in my case studies. My senior colleagues in DGCA Mr. Lalit Gupta, Joint Director General, Mr. Rajsekharan, Deputy Director General, Mr. Shanmugam, Dy. Director General, Mr. Maneesh Kumar, Director (Air Safety) and Ms. Tuhinanshu Sharma, Dy. Director (Airworthiness) deserve a special mention, as without their contribution to the enquiry of this research, educating me on the nuances and technicalities of the safety regulations, industry specifics, field realities etc. this study would have been only a theoretical expression.

My sincere thanks are due also to the team of senior management of GMR Airports at New Delhi –Mr. P.S. Nair, Chief Executive Officer- Corporate, airport Sector, Mr. Ashwini Khanna, VP in-charge of operations and development of IGI Terminals and Mr. Jitendra Singh, Officer in charge of Airport Operations Coordination Central Control Centre, IGI New Delhi of GMR Airports for their invaluable assistance in gathering and coordinating the data for this study. Throughout the study, Mr. Prashant Sanglikar, IATA representative in India and Mr. Harish Kamath, from the Transport Sector of ICRA Management Consulting Services Ltd., provided many interesting and meaningful discussions on the various aspect of airline operations. These interactions provided invaluable opportunity to me to understand the practical side of air transport operations.

My friend and guide Dr. Shailendra Kumar deserves my gratitude for his indispensable help in the review of my innumerable drafts and providing the constructive comments and suggestions.

I must acknowledge the tireless efforts and assistance of Mr. Avtansh Ghai, an alumni of School of Planning and architecture and a transport analyst himself and Mr. Samraj Sahai, a Ph.D. Scholar of Delhi University, for sparing time and being a sounding board in my surveys, discussions and technical analyses, presented in my study.

My fellow researchers in IIFT have been the source of inspiration to my quest, providing a patient ear for my ideas, arguing and debating and mostly keeping me on the right track.

I am thankful to my friends and relatives who patiently tolerated my withdrawal from social obligations without disowning me and patiently waited for me to make amends much later. I am truly grateful to my siblings for taking my hermetic absence from all family functions, meetings, and such obligations in their stride, forgiving me my failings to that extent.

And I confess that my entry into this academic world again is solely due to the encouragement and continual support of my children- Maitreyee and Vikramaditya.

Most importantly I owe immensely to my mother for this wonderful life and sustained support through thick and thin, enabling me to indulge in such pursuits as this study at the expense of spending time with her.
