CONTENTS

Declaration                               i
Preface                                   ii-xi

INTRODUCTION                              1-11

• Definition of Indian Art.
• Definition of Music.
• Discussion on Art Music of North India.
• Definition of Custom.
• Analysis of the term 'Classical' in terms of Hindustani and western music.
• Brief history of the development Hindustani classical music.
• Discussion of some applicable psychological principals.
• A detailed list of texts on music.
• Methodology of research.

CHAPTER – I                               12-57

Improvisation

• Elements that facilitate improvisation
• Planned improvisation
• Creative Improvisation
• Customization of styles according to physical and other resources

Techniques and tools of improvisation

• Badhat, Sargam, Taana etc.
• Bandish related improvisation
• Alankars and Alankaran
• Variations in note length, direction, order of notes, ornaments, rhythmic patterns, timber and vowels, substituting notes etc.
• Free improvisation
• Aalaap/Vistaar
Bol aalaap and sargam aalaap
Layabant
Taana etc.
Using alankarans such as khatkaa, murki, meend, gamak, behalaawaa etc.

Psychological principals applicable on creation and appreciation of music

CHAPTER - II 58-85

Social factors that determine aesthetics of music

- Abhjijaat and Deshi music

Improvisation in various gharaanaas

- Gwalior, Aagraa, Jaipur, Patialaa, Kiraanaa gharaanaas and their peculiarities

CHAPTER – III 59-108

Comparative analysis of dhrupad, khayaal and thumri styles

- Hindustani & Carnatic Music
- Hindustani & Western Music

CHAPTER – IV 109-166

Improvisation through Alankaras

- Lists of Alankaars and Alankarans as tools of improvisation from ancient, medieval and modern periods, featuring categorizations by Sharangdev, Ahobal, Somnath etc to Radha Mohan Sen and Sadiq Ali Khan.

CHAPTER – V 167-187

Improvisation Through Taans

- Lists of Taanas and varieties provided by medieval and ancient texts as tools of improvisation
CONCLUSION

- Summing up of the entire dissertation. Looking at the achievement of the purpose and aims of this work.

DISCOGRAPHY

- Lists of commercially marketed music for reference

BIBLIOGRAPHY