Acknowledgement

I remain highly indebted to Professor Niru Hazarika, Department of Political Science, Gauhati University, for giving me the proper guidance to study the problem in depth and her encouragement in every step during the time of study. Without proper guidance and help of Hazarika madam, it could not have been possible.

I must record special debt of gratitude to all the faculty members, Department of Political Science, Gauhati University, for giving me the opportunity to study the problem and advice as and when required.

I also remain grateful to Sri Kumal Gogoi, principal, Moridhal College, Moridhal, Dhemaji, for providing me necessary leave for the completion of the study and his encouragement and advice in every step for the whole period.

I also received assistance from several officials and individuals. Thanks are due to Project Director, DRDA, Dhemaji, BDOs of Dhemaji, Sissibor Gaon, Bordoloni blocks and Statistical department, Dhemaji for extending help by providing data.

I am grateful to the librarians of Gauhati University, Dibrugarh University and Moridhal College for allowing me to use the library resources for the present study.

I also offer my heartful thanks to Gajen, Mintu, Guna, Gunjan, Dhiren, Bijit, Lalit, Hirumoni Baruah for helping me in data collection process.

Thanks also go to the persons interviewed during my field visit for their co-operation and kind response to the questions.
I offer my heartful thanks to my wife Mrs. Kalpana Bhuyan (Saikia) and children Manashpratim and Tridisha for their inspiration in carrying out my research work.

I am happy to record a sense of gratitude for all the encouragement, which I received from different individuals to complete my work.

Last but not the least, special thanks go to my colleagues of Moridhal College for their sincere encouragement to pursue the research work.

Dipen Saikia.
